West Penn Involved in Million and Half Coal Deal in West Virginia

Power Company Party to Purchase of 7,000 Acres For Plant Fuel.

INSURANCE IN EMERGENCY

Coke Region Concern and American Gas & Electric Company Now Hold Title to 10,000 Acres In Adjoining Blocks; Adequate for 60 Years.

In order to insure an adequate supply of fuel for its large power plant at Windsor, W Va, independent of public carrier transportation charges and difficulties during periods of car shortage, the West Penn Power company, in conjunction with the American Gas & Electric company announces the closing of one of the largest coal deals recently consummated in West Virginia

The transaction involves the purchase of 7,000 acres of Pittsburg vein steam coal by the Penn American Coal company, owned jointly by the West Penn Power company and the American Gas & Electric company from James A Paisley of Cleveland O

The coal is located in Brooke and Ohio counties The consideration is understood to have been approximately $1 500,000

With existing holdings of the same interests, which the new tract comprising approximately 40,000 000 tons adjoins, title to a solid block of 10,000 acres is obtained providing coal of high grade quality sufficient to supply the Windsor power station 50 to 60 years

The capacity of the mine adjacent to the power plant is now being increased to 2,500 tons per day

HILL FARM AND FERGUSON MINES TO BE REOPENED

J. Fred Kurtz, W. D. McGinnis and Associates Acquire and Will Operate the Properties.

Mining operations are to be resumed at two historic plants of the Connellsville region as the result of a transaction concluded between J Fred Kurtz W D McGinnis and their associates and the American Manganese Manufacturing company of Dunbar By this deal the former acquire the properties of the Hill Farm and Ferguson mines, including the remaining coal of the Connellsville coking seam the Sewickley and Redstone seams 200 acres of surface and all houses mine buildings and equipment and railroad siding

The coking coal in these mines which is of exceptional quality and high koaks, has been used by the Semet-Solvay company in its by-product coking plant and the product consumed by the furnaces of the American Manganese Manufacturing company and the Dunbar Furnace company, its predecessor for years

The new property will be known as the Ferguson mines and the P R R siding as the Ferguson siding The Federal Fuel company will be the exclusive sales agents for the output of these mines James J Brown, of Scottdale superintendent at the Dexter plant of the Connellsville Coke company, another property owned by Mr McGinnis and Mr Kurtz, will be the superintendent at the mine He is already in charge of the reconstruction and cleaning up work now in progress in both Hill Farm and Ferguson

Both of these mines are among the early operations in the Dunbar district and of the Connellsville region and both have had tragic history In 1890 the tapping of a bore hole in the Hill Farm mine released an accumulation of water and gas The latter ignited from a driver's lamp, setting fire to the wooden brattice and causing an explosion A section of the mine in which 32 men were employed was completely cut off resulting in the death of all the men from after damp produced by the explosion Efforts was made to reach the imprisoned men by a tunnel driven from the Ferguson mine in which the most expert miners from all parts of the region worked in relays day and night It was not until 22 months later after the accumulated water had been pumped out, that it was possible to recover the bodies

In 1902 three men were killed outright by an explosion in the Ferguson mine By numerous falls of roof and artificial means of ventilation the mines have been cleared of noxious gas and are now considered safe for purposes of operation

Phillips Gardens Valued at $10,000 By Local Judges

Because of the excellence of the gardens at the Phillips plant of the H. C. Frick Coke company, George W. Campbell, C. H. Kennel and David M. Parkhill of Connellsville, the judges, found it difficult to name the prize winners, but awarded the prizes as follows:

Best vegetable garden, Fred Botti, an oven leveler, first prize; Carlo Torre, coke machine operator, second prize; Jacob D. Barnhart, stable boss, third prize. Honorable mention was given Frank Lappi, Andrew Kozup, George Such, Frank Greber, John Mientus, Joseph Barata, Matthew Sudik, John Alexszik and R. S. Burris. The latter is supply clerk at the plant and was not allowed to compete for the prizes. His garden, one of the best and cleanest at the plant, was valued at $150.

All gardens are exceptionally good. Of the 136 only 35 were not cultivated, due to change in tenants in some cases and in others to neglect. The total valuation of gardens, including outlying lots under cultivation, was fixed at $10,000.

The judges very highly complimented Superintendent M. A. Burris on the excellent condition of the plant and house surroundings. The absence of weeds and rubbish in the alleys was especially noticeable. The number of hogs kept by employes, estimated at 300, also attracted the attention of the judges.

Special Train For Picnic of the Frick Veterans Scheduled

P. J. Tormay, J. E. Struble and C. B. Franks of Connellsville; J. A. Barnhart of Scottdale, and W. C. Hood and W. C. Mullan of Uniontown, committee in charge of the 13th annual picnic of the Frick Veterans' association, have completed arrangements for a special train to carry the veterans and their friends to Idlewild on Wednesday, August 10, the date upon which the outing is to be held.

The special will run over the Pennsylvania on the following schedule: Leave Uniontown 7:40 A. M.; Darent, 7:55; Dunbar, 8:04; Connellsville, 8:12; Scottdale, 8:29; Alverton, 8:36; Tarr, 8:42; Youngwood, 8:56; East Greensburg, 9:06.

Returning train will leave Idlewild about 6 P. M. Baggage cars will be provided for baskets. Those not providing lunches will have to go to Ligonier for their meal.

An unusually large attendance is expected, judging from the responses now being received to the invitations sent out by Miss Margaret Goshorn, secretary. A number will make the trip by automobile.

Rose Ice Cream Company to Build More Modern Plant

The old Yough Crystal Ice plant site in McCormick avenue has been purchased by F. C. Rose and his son, Albert L. Rose, to be used as the location of a new plant of the Rose Ice Cream company. Work on the erection of the new plant will begin this fall, it has been announced, and when completed it will be one of the most modern and fully equipped ice cream and ice manufacturing plants in this part of Western Pennsylvania. Water will be secured from a well on a property purchased in Mountain alley.

The present factory of the ice cream company, a 20-year-old industry, is considered inadequate to supply the demands.

The present factory will be converted into a storage room. A garage to care for the present large fleet of trucks will be erected in connection with the new plant.

EVANGELICALS PICNIC

Three Hundred Fifty at Outing Wednesday at Beatty's Grove.

The annual picnic of the First Evangelical church school was held yesterday in Beatty's grove. The Sunday school was well represented. A record was set. There were about 350 in attendance. The recreational program was a feature in the outing, there being numerous contests, races of all kinds, jumping contests, horse shoe pitching, etc. The climax in the sports program was the ball game between the Evangelical and Baptist church league teams. The Evangelicals won, 5 to 4.

The table committee had a splendid 6 o'clock dinner at which all present were guests. Ice cream and lemonade were served free to all on the grounds. The Sugar Bowl provided a treat of candy for all the children of the school. Through the kind hospitality of the merchants of Connellsville, South Connellsville and some individuals, prizes for the contests and fruits for the table were donated.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol during later life Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia, often are the result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics

British Are Alarmed Over an "Americanization of China"

By Associated Press

LONDON July 5—A solemn warning on the menace to Britain of the Americanization of China is uttered by a special far-eastern correspondent of the Daily Mail who recently attended the 10th anniversary celebration of the American Indemnity (Tsing Hua) college in Peking

The college was established as a result of the United States government remitting part of its share of the Boxer indemnity

The boys here are China's future leaders the correspondent says and after pointing out that they all go to America after completing their studies in Peking he continues

Educated under the American system aware that they owe their scholarship to American justice and saturated with American sentiment by five to eight years residence in the United States they will look to America solely for cooperation in the troublous years to come America is rearing the China of tomorrow

Why should not we (the British) he demands share an influence that we formerly monopolized and that is now slipping away from us" and he goes on

I asked a returned student as we watched the boys at baseball why China did not look to England as an educational field

"Sure we will he replied when you remit the Boxer indemnity

The Chinese president of the college put it to the correspondent this way

Chinese American friendship has become so proverbial that few people take the trouble to investigate the cause of such good international understanding Any country that wishes to captivate the hearts of the Chinese can do no better than follow the example set by America

B Lennox-Simpson an Englishman who holds the post of political adviser to the Chinese government and who is at present in London writes to the Daily Mail that the process of the Americanization of China is a very real one

"Big business he says is tending to go more and more to American firms because the Chinese believe in favoring those who favor them and he concludes

The helpfulness of America not only to Young China but also to Old China is a subject of common conversation throughout the immense Chinese society which fill the far eastern continent So far the results of this have not been felt nor understood in this country but unless we take speedy action we are destined to drop during the next 12 months to third or fourth place in the Chinese republic and thereby affect our whole standing throughout Asia

ICE CREAM

IS CARBONATED

Purer or Better Ice Cream Can't Be Made

WHEN we heard of Prof. W. P. Heath's newly discovered process for making carbonated ice cream we immediately investigated it. We have always made the finest ice cream money, brains and the purest ingredients can produce.

We knew the error of freezing ice cream in common air, which is never perfectly pure. So when we learned that Prof. Heath had discovered a way to freeze ice cream in a sterile, pure, germ-free atmosphere we knew he had solved the greatest problem of ice cream sanitation.

We secured the rights to manufacture ice cream under the Heathmade carbonated process. It is an expensive method, but it adds a maximum of safety to ice cream and, incidentally, it makes a much more delicious ice cream, richer, more flavory.

When you buy Hagan's Carbonated Ice Cream for the kiddies you know it is super-pure. Insist that your dealer provide it He can get it if he hasn't it already.

THURSDAY EVE'G, JULY 21, 1921.

OMENS OF RETURNING PROSPERITY.

Changes in the business and industrial situation which presage an improvement are not yet observable in this section They will not attract the attention of buyers, or move them to action, until the coke ovens begin to again send their smoke skyward and there has been such a readjustment of prices and values as will more easily restore the purchasing power of the dollar For these reasons and the confident belief that not until September 1 or later will a new impetus be given to industry the disposition at this time is to defer making commitments and patiently await the course of events which, to those in close touch with business and industrial conditions give encouraging promise of renewed activity in the early fall

As an agency for the betterment of the situation and a means for insuring that when prosperity returns it will be stable and enduring, it is being more and more generally conceded that the administration of President Harding is doing a real constructive work That this is the view of the well informed who disregard political bias, which partisans are so prone to give such matters, is attested by the editorial comment of the Baltimore Manufacturers Record which follows

The constructive program of the Administration is beginning to reveal itself. That great guarantor of "prosperity, in normal times, a protective tariff bill, is on its way to passage in Congress. The building of the budget is under way under somewhat sensational auspices, but out of the mire of oaths and specifically the germ of efficient conduct of the departments may yet appear. Secretary Hughes is far advanced in the formulation of a program which will permit utilization of American authority for reasonable assistance in the rehabilitation of the stricken parts of Europe, and for peace, without, we suspect, surrender of the national sovereignty.

Real assistance in some form has been accorded to the stock-raising industry and negotiations are under way for assistance also to other stricken industries. The experimentalists have been held in check so far, and there are means of a decent regard for business sentiment—a sentiment which generally adequately represents the conditions under which it is possible to move forward instead of backward.

It is in administration rather than in legislation that the Harding regime places its present immediate hope of reviving stagnant trade. The decision to permit the funding of the debt owed by the railroads to the government and in this way turn into the railroad coffers during the next six months some five hundred millions of dollars in a sane business move, the beneficial effects of which are certain to be momentous. If we can fund, without interest, the debts owed us by the foreign nations, we certainly can afford to fund, with interest, the debt owed by perfectly solvent domestic institutions, on the efficiency of which depends the industrial life of the country.

There is a definite understanding, we believe, that in return for this government consideration of the roads, they, on their part, will not only make payment of the millions in their audited accounts which they now owe and have been owing for months to various industries throughout the country, but they also undertake to place belated orders for equipment, upkeep, etc. There are a great number of establishments which have been hampered by non-payment of sums due them by the railroads. They will again be in funds and can get to work.

The requirements of the railroads are enormous. They will straightway begin to purchase in quantity. This will thrill into life the great steel centers, it is hoped; revive the demand for certain classes of lumber; set traffic to moving and keep pounding away at inertia all summer long. Five hundred millions of money that has been tied up and idle is to be thrown into the channels of trade—actual money. That means what the pigtop economists call inflation—moderate inflation. It is in fact, a mere use of the circulating medium for essential purposes, in contrast to the almost criminal withdrawal of funds which has been going on for more than a year. It is the first ray of sunlight piercing through the low black clouds. There is promised the sort of relief that is reasonably immediate, the kind the country needs, for we have been drifting into a shell.

We look for substantial improvement from now on, the movement getting under way this month and gathering momentum thereafter. It will be a different autumn from that experienced last year, we are confident.

The most ardent supporters of President Harding will not claim that his administration can work miracles with business and industry but his severest critic, if honest with himself cannot deny that the administration's attitude toward business is having a pronounced effect in turning the tide which has so long set against a return to prosperity In fact as the foregoing so lucidly states the turn in the tide is near at hand but will require time to make change in its direction Its rate of progress will be hastened in proportion as encouragement is given every proper effort to complete the readjustment to peace time conditions

Press reports of the meeting of the Democratic state committee in Harrisburg state that "there was no opposition to John P Bracken nominated for Congressman-at-Large No opposition was permitted, Chairman Bruce Sterling having picked and groomed the nominee himself and given notice that no candidate unless still "wetter" than Bracken, was to be considered for the honor of leading a forlorn hope next November

Women Who Should Not be Mothers

Anne Shannon Moore in Good Housekeeping

I would divert from motherhood the woman whose soul is bent on polishing mahogany—I would relieve her of children and send her to whom she might polish mahogany all her days

I would divert from motherhood that woman so obsessed with a book that her child's voice, coming up to her out of the wilderness of his young ignorance is forever an unwelcome interruption I would free her of the child and send her to a world of books

I would divert from motherhood that woman so absorbed in flowers that the face of he child appearing before her is only a signal for an order—another package of seed a trowel more fertilizer, whose eyes are so filled with flower-faces that they never take in the little human face hungrily asking for love I would free her of child-faces forever and send her to work among flower faces only

I would divert from motherhood that woman with an antipathy to the intimate ways who never expresses her love in endearing terms or touches or tender smiles I would divert these walled-in self-contained women from motherhood and send them to work in laboratories where matter has no feeling and feeling is not needed to penetrate the mysteries of matter

I would divert all stiff cold purely career-minded purely housekeeping-minded purely pleasure minded purely go minded women—I would divert all women who lack the passion for human service—for love implies human service—I would in brief divert every woman in whom the maternal instinct is not the dominating instinct And I would take chances on any loss to the race by reason of this diversion being more than made up by the coming into existence of a crop of universally loved—expressively loved—babies and homes and households

VACATION THOUGHTS.

Never noticed that squeak in the stairs before
Yet it haunts me now with its dismal tone
And it seems to say to me o'er and o'er
This is your house but you're all alone!

What's got into the clock down there
That it ticks so loud It is all so queer
I never have heard it before I swear
When the boy was home and the mother here

What's gone wrong with the living room"
The chairs look ghastly and gaunt and grim
Like cold gray figures beside a tomb
They're not the same, without her and him

Why should I jump when a curtain flaps
And why's the matter with me to night"
A little nervous and tired, perhaps,
But why should I feel that nothing's right

Oh an empty house is a dismal place
Despite what cynics and scoffers say
It needs the light of a smiling face
For homes not home with the folks away

And the clock will tick and the floor will squeak
And the rooms seem ghastly and cold and bleak
The nights will be dreary and long and bleak
Till the summer goes and the folks get back

American Legion Resents Attack of German Newspapers

Special to The Courier.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 21—Commenting upon a recent attack of the German press of this country against the American Legion, Alvin M. Owsley, assistant director of the Legion's national Americanism commission, in an interview at the Legion national headquarters here, said:

"The hydra-headed monster is again in our midst. That the American Legion has incurred its most bitter hatred should commend our organization and the cause of the ex-service men to all right-thinking Americans."

An article reprinted from one of the pro-German papers by the Vereins Post, with the headline, "Resign from the Legion, Boys," has come to the attention of Legion national headquarters. It recites alleged "Rhine horrors" by French colored troops on the Rhine, which the Legion understood had been withdrawn long ago.

"The American Legion is making war on wretched women and children of our own race," declared the propagandist, who says, "Resign from the American Legion! Do it now and show Galbraith and his Canadians that we are Americans and not dummies." Legion officials regard the reference to legionnaires as "Canadians" as another imputation from the same crowd, who charged that money for the Americanism rally staged at Madison Square to counteract the Von Hammerstein meeting was English money.

Commissioners in Upper Silesia Press Demand For Troops

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 20.—The British, Italian and French commissioners in Upper Silesia have sent in a report in which they jointly demand that reinforcements be sent to the Allied troops of occupation, it was announced this afternoon.

This recommendation came almost simultaneously with the receipt of a note by the French foreign office from the British government in which Great Britain insisted there was no necessity for sending more troops into Upper Silesia. The note was in reply to a communication in which the French government notified Great Britain that reinforcements were needed urgently in order to make sure that the troops were not disturbed and to insure respect for the decisions of the Allies under the treaty of Versailles.

Confluence.

CONFLUENCE, July 20—Prof. C. B. Cassidy has returned to his home in Pittsburg after a visit here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Critchfield, and other friends.

Oats harvest is on here in full blast. It is unusually early this season.

Joseph Brown has completed building a garage on the West Side.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McDonald have returned from a six weeks' visit in the western states and in Canada.

A. L. Bird of the West Side, who met with a very painful injury Monday by running a pitch fork in his foot, is getting along nicely.

H. P. Burnworth of Johnson Chapel was in town yesterday transacting business.

Silas Hileman, who has been very ill for several weeks, is slightly improved.

J. H. Kennerly is starting work Monday to prepare his mine for shipping coal.

William Steele of Uniontown has returned home after a visit with friends here.

The improvements to Fred Wilhelm's residence are nearing completion.

George Mickey, C. & O. conductor, is spending a few days on a fishing trip. W. W. Frazee is handling the ticket punch during his absence.

[National Crop Improvement Service.]

THERE IS no need of further argument to prove that flies should be kept out of the home, and yet in every house, especially where there are children, the screen door stands open or partly open, a great deal of the time.

"It is a mistaken idea of economy to patch up a screen door so that it does not perform its work at all times. Mother generally buys that door at a department store or father tinkers it up in the shed. The consequence is it does not fit the opening and in nearly all cases the hinges are entirely too light and the door so made that it will sag and, scraping at the bottom, it will not close perfectly," says Mr. Frank Bauckes, Vice President, American Steel and Wire Company.

"The hinges ought to be much heavier or instead of two, use three. The three-hinge idea is good because it will prevent the light door frame from warping and in wet weather the door will swell and bind unless securely hinged.

"There is nothing so efficient as a good coil spring to close the door quickly and positively and this spring can also be so applied that the pull will be up from the lower corner, preventing sagging.

"The door should fit snug all around and yet not bind in wet weather.

"To prevent banging, there are quite a number of rubber devices which catch the first slam and then allow the spring to close the door gently and firmly.

"Screen doors should be given the best of care. The hinges should be oiled several times during the season and in the winter time the door should be taken off its hinges, given a coat of paint or door varnish and put away in such a manner that the frame will not buckle.

"A diagonal strip should be placed in the lower panel on the inside to prevent bulging the wire out by knee pressure. A door thus cared for will last for a good many years.

YOU CAN'T SAVE.

Possibly You've Never Gone About It the Right Way.

Here's a simple plan. Get a Liberty Bell Home Bank at the First National of Connellsville. A savings account, opened with $1 or more, gives you the little bank free. Drop a coin in it every day—a penny, if nothing more—but a larger coin whenever you can. The little bank will be full before you know it and you will have saved a nice sum without missing it. Act now. Save dimes today and have dollars tomorrow.—Advertisement.

Suffered Intense Pain.

"A few years ago when visiting relatives in Michigan something I had eaten brought on an attack of cholera morbus," writes Mrs. Celesta McVicker, Macon, Mo. "I suffered intense pain and had to go to bed. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and one dose relieved the pain wonderfully. I only took two or three doses but they did the work.—Advertisement.

PESKY BED BUGS

(Pesky Devils Quietus) P. D. Q. is a new chemical that puts the everlasting to the Pesky bedbugs, roaches, fleas, ants and cootles—impossible for the pesky devils to exist where P. D. Q. is used.

Recommendations of Hotels, Hospitals, Railroad Companies and other public institutions are a guarantee to the public that the safest, quickest and most economical way of ridding the pesky insect is by the use of P. D. Q. as this chemical kills the eggs as well as the live ones, and will not injure the clothing.

A 35c package makes a full quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas or cootles—and also contains a patent spout to get the egg nests in the hard-to-get-at-places and saves labor.

Special Hospital size $2.50 makes five gallons—contains three spouts—supplied by druggists or send prepaid upon receipt of price, either size, by the Owl Chemical Co., Terre Haute, Ind.—never peddled.

SAVES DOG'S LIFE

Court Cancels Clause in Will That Provided for Chloroform.

Judge Strother in Probation court at Kansas City recently issued an order permitting Mrs. Carrie Kane to "keep and care for" Laddie, a Scotch collie, "the remainder of his natural life."

When Laddie's mistress, Dr. Violet E. Metzger, died last September, she left directions in her will that Laddie be "humanley chloroformed." The executors of the will appeared in court to ask that that part of the will be set aside and that Laddie be turned over to Mrs. Kane, a friend of his dead mistress, who has been caring for the dog.

Horse Has a "Comeback."

Vinita, Okla.—George E. Thomas, county agent of Craig county, says that the financial depression right now is a boon to the horse and that all over Oklahoma and other states horses, mules and even oxen are being used this year to plow and do other field work that heretofore may have been done by a gas or kerosene tractor. The low value of mill feeds also is influencing the "comeback" of Dobbin, he says.

Bolt Cooks Potatoes; Cook Unhurt.

Mrs. R. H. Cornish was standing beside her kitchen sink in Pittsburgh during a lively electrical storm. In her left hand was a potato she was peeling and in her right an aluminum-handled paring knife. There was a lightning flash as Mrs. Cornish cut into the potato rind, and she fell to the floor unconscious. Mrs. Cornish was revived, unharmed, after several hours. The knife, it was found, had been partly melted and the potato was thoroughly cooked.

The political pot is beginning to stir around town. Several borough offices are to be filled. The principal fight this fall will be for justice of the peace and burgess. Several parties have intimated that they will be in the field for the positions.

Finishing touches are being put on the Legion hall. It is being newly papered and painted on the second floor. The lower floor is already furnished. Many pleasant hours are being spent by the boys in their new home. They did their duty over there, and there should be nothing too good for them here.

A CHILD HAS AN INSTINCT FOR THE TRUTH

ELSIE had been bad and her mother sent her upstairs to talk it over with God. After an hour, she came down stairs singing. Her mother asked her what God had said to her. "O", she replied, "He said Great Scott, Elsie, don't feel so bad, there are a lot of worse people in this house than you are."

We know children. We have children of our own. We know how they should be treated. That's why we lay such stress on our careful attention to children's needs. They feel at home in our Stores because they are treated fairly and squarely, served in turn, and sold what they are sent for. We know they will tell you the truth about us.

COKERS GET BAD START AND LOSE TO WHITNEY TEAM BY SCORE OF 9-0

Jamieson, New Twirler, Fails to Show Much and Allows 14 Hits.

CHURCH STARS TO PLAY

Getting away to a bad start in the opening inning of the game with Whitney, the Connellsville Independents lost to the Westmoreland county team at Latrobe yesterday afternoon, 9-0. The defeat placed the Cokers at the bottom of the three-cornered league but a victory over Yough Valley here Saturday will even things up.

The locals pulled the hidden ball trick yesterday after a Whitney batter had touched Jamieson, a pitcher from Ambridge, for a triple. Stirey, also of Ambridge, a third baseman, held the ball when it was thrown to him and the runner, thinking it had been tossed to the pitcher, stepped off the bag. Stirey touched him out.

Jamieson, the twirler given a try-out yesterday, failed to show anything. Buck, the opposing twirler, had the Cokers down to three hits, Yanchus, Moser and Jamieson, getting these. Hobe Fisher had a sacrifice fly.

The crowd was poor and mainly from Connellsville. There was quite a large delegation of faithful followers who witnessed the defeat of their team.

The score by innings:

Connellsville	000000 000—0
Whitney	1321 000 30x—9

PITTSBURG CLUB PREPARES FOR DAVIS CUP MATCHES

The great stands on both sides and on one end of the Davis cup tennis courts at the Allegheny Country club, Sewickley, are being erected. Workmen began setting up the big stands several days ago, and according O. D. Thompson, chairman of the grand stand committee, there will be seats for 3,000 spectators at each of the three matches that will be played between the British Isles and Australasian teams for the right to challenge America for the famed Davis cup.

The Allegheny Country club is assuming responsibility for all expenses in connection with the preparations for the tennis matches. Unlike many other sports, tennis is not promoted on a commercial basis, to make money. The proceeds from the sale of tickets is used to defray the expenses of carrying on the Davis cup competition. All orders are placed through the Allegheny Country club.

"It is a fact," said Joseph M. Jennings, treasurer of the United States Tennis Association, "that the public does not realize how much is involved in sending a team halfway around the world for a contest like this, no matter whether the United States or some other is the challenging nation. The National association had to lay out something like $20,000 on this expedition last year and although part of that comes back in this country's share of the proceeds of matches in which it is competed abroad, the net expense is still very heavy even though the team is economical. All this was made plain in the reports that have been given to the association."

France has been eliminated in the Davis cup matches by India. The Indian team leaves for the United States Saturday and will meet the Japanese team in the semi-finals.

CHURCH LEAGUE STARS TO PLAY UNIONTOWN

The Church League All-Stars, recently organized from various contesting teams, will play the Uniontown All-Stars at Bailey Field, Uniontown, Saturday afternoon. The team will leave here on the 1:15 o'clock street car.

At a meeting of the players held last night "Beanie" Cover was elected temporary captain. No manager was selected.

If there are sufficient rooters on hand it may be possible to charter a special car, and for that reason persons intending to make the trip are requested to call W. F. Underwood at the Y. M. C. A.

"Smoke" Minerd Clears Bases By Circuit Clout

A great gathering of fans cheered themselves hoarse at Poplar Grove last evening when "Smoke" Minerd of the Klairdales clouted the ball for four bases in the fourth inning, bringing in three runners ahead of him. Incidentally "Smoke," always a favorite, is now worshipped along with the gods of baseball. It was his first circuit clout of the season.

The final count was: Klairdales 10, Fayette Baking company 1. It is the fourth consecutive victory for the Klairdales, after making a rather poor showing early in the season. The pitching of White for the home team also featured, he having 10 strikeouts to his credit.

Tonight the Christian Church team of the local Church league plays on the Poplar Grove lot.

Preserves for Game Are to Be Further Extended by State

HARRISBURG, July 21.—Plans for further extension of the State's game preserves will begin to work out this week when inspections of tracts of forest land will be made by a special committee of the State Game Commission with a view to early acquisition and stocking this summer. Commissioners W. B. McCaleb and Henry J. Donaldson were named a special committee of investigation at the recent meeting of the commission and will visit the areas.

Two of the tracts are in Lehigh county, one having been under consideration before, and another is on the line of Clearfield and Elk counties, adjacent to properties already owned by the state. In addition the commission has been offered the use of tracts in Potter and Clinton counties for auxiliary preserves. Further inspections will be made in western counties.

One of the plans of the commission is to purchase young ringnecked pheasants instead of buying mature birds and to liberate them during the summer in counties which are closed to pheasant hunting. The young birds can be bought cheaper and can be handled better than older ones. About 1,500 young birds will be bought.

"Walking" Motor Car For Slippery Roads

A true nonskidding motor car, described with illustrations in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, has been evolved by a Czecho-Slovakian inventor in which the driving members are feet and legs instead of wheels, and which propels itself by a heel-and-toe walking action. The four legs of the odd contrivance are attached to the throws of a crankshaft in such a way that as it revolves they are first lifted, then carried forward and lowered, and again carried backward.

Another part causes them to rock backward at the top as they descend, which brings the heel of the foot in contact with the ground first. As the shaft continues to turn, the heel gives a backward shoving impulse and rises. The toe then comes into contact and imparts a shove. The throws of the crankshaft are so spaced that the eight heels and toes follow each other with their impulses in rapid succession and at exactly equal intervals.

Luther B. Collins' Estate Dwindles to Fourth of Original

Opinions and orders were handed down in seven estates by Judge J. C. Work in Orphans court in Uniontown Tuesday morning.

In the estate of Luther B. Collins, Connellsville druggist, who died January 14, 1920, at Connellsville, the total assets amounted to $13,376.10 and after all debts were paid the balance amounted to $3,603.47 which was divided between the widow, Della Mae Collins, and a son, Luther H. Collins, who are now residing in Cleveland, O. The records show that the estate suffered a keen loss from the time of Mr. Collins' death until the store was sold. The court stated that it was one of the misfortunes in conducting a running business.

John Babik, who died at Star Junction, July 24, 1918, left an estate valued at $1,057.20. After all debts were paid there was a balance of $455.89 which was divided among the widow and five children.

Irvin B. Davis, widower, Saltlick township, who died December 31, 1919, left an estate valued at $1,680.09. After all expenses were paid there was a balance of $1,198.50. Of this amount $300 was ordered paid for a marker. The balance was divided among seven children.

Joseph B. Adams of Saltlick township, who died April 10, 1920, left an estate valued at $415.17. He was unmarried. The expenses balanced the account.

The popularity of soccer football in England was again shown by the receipts for the Spurs and Villa game at White Hart Lane recently which amounted to nearly $35,000, a record for any English cup game outside of the finals. In order that the crowd might be in keeping with the accommodation, Spurs made the price of admission 2 shillings, which kept the attendance down to 51,991.

MARANVILLE CAN BE SERIOUS

Pirates' Crack Little Shortstop Combines His Gift of Comedy With Sense of Propriety.

Walter Maranville, who is quite on a par with Nick Altrock as a diamond comedian, combines with his gift of comedy a rare sense of propriety. In short, he knows when to act the clown and when to be serious. Before a recent game at the Polo grounds he pulled a series of comic antics that figuratively knocked the fans off their seats and pulled one or two of his stunts when he went to bat for the first time. When, however, the Giants and Pirates settled down to their bitter fight for the game he was as serious of mien and manner as one could wish, forgetting for the time being his

Not until the Pirates had scored six runs in the ninth inning, thus sewing up the pastime, did the Rabbit again cut loose and make the spectators roar with delight at his impersonation of Hughie Jennings coaching at third base.

A triple play, unassisted!

Smiley was playing close in near the keystone sack. There were runners on first and second. The man at bat lined one to him where he stood for out No. 1. Smiley then stepped on second base before the runner, who had started for third, could return, for out No. 2. Out No. 3, the completion of the play, came when he tagged the runner coming from first.

POULTRY FLOCKS

TEST EGGS AT LEAST TWICE

Make Inspection on Seventh and Fourteenth Days for Those Infertile or With Dead Germs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

It is of little profit for a hen to sit patiently for 21 days if the eggs over which she fluffs her feathers are infertile or if the germs in them have died. Neither does it pay to run an incubator for three weeks, with its attendant care and expense, if the eggs in it are not fertile.

All poultry owners who raise chicks should be thoroughly familiar with the method of testing eggs. An egg, whether it is fertile or not, has a small grayish spot, known as the germinal spot, on the surface of the yolk. As soon as a fertile egg is placed under a hen or in an incubator the development of the germ begins. All eggs should be tested at least twice during the incubation period, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This is done preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days. The infertile eggs, and those with dead germs, should then be removed. White-shell eggs can be tested on the fourth or fifth day, whereas the development of eggs having brown shells often can not be seen by the use of the ordinary egg tester until the seventh day.

A satisfactory home-made egg tester or candler can be made with a shoe box or any other box large enough to hold the lamp. Cut a hole a little larger than a 25-cent piece in the side of the box, so that when the lamp is placed inside the box the hole in the side will be opposite the flame. Make a hole also in the top of the box large enough to prevent the top from catching fire from the heat of the lamp. When the chimney is long enough, allow it to extend through the top of the box. This permits the heat to escape and avoids the risk of fire. Special care should always be exercised in using kerosene lamps in candling to prevent fire. To prevent further possibility of fire, a wooden box may be used in place of a pasteboard one, and, if desired, the opening through which the chimney extends may be lined with tin or asbestos.

Electric or gas lamps may be used in a box with a hole in the same way that the kerosene lamp is used. The hole which is in the side of the box should be on the same level as the light. The eggs may also be tested by daylight or daylight, using a shade or curtain with a hole in it for the light to shine through.

Testing with a tester or candler should be done in a dark room. Hold each egg with the large end up, so that the size of the air cell may be seen, as well as the condition of the embryo or germ. An infertile egg when candled looks perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one; while a fertile egg shows a dark spot known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins radiating in all directions. When the germ is dead, and the egg has been incubated for at least 48 hours, the blood settles away from the embryo toward the edges of the yolk, forming in some cases an irregular circle of blood, known as a blood ring. Eggs vary in this respect, some showing only a streak of blood.

All infertile eggs, and those with dead germs, should be removed at the end of the first test. Eggs with dead germs soon decay and give off a bad odor if allowed to remain. The infertile eggs make good feed for young chickens.

At the second test, on the fourteenth day, the eggs containing strong, living embryos will be dark and well filled up, showing a clear, sharp, distinct line between the air cell and the growing embryo, while eggs with dead germs will show only partial development and lack this clear, distinct outline.

The period of incubation for hen's eggs is 21 days, but usually some of the eggs hatch the evening of the twentieth day. Sometimes it happens, however, that the hatch will run over the twenty-first day, especially during cool weather.

MUCH LOSS IS PREVENTABLE

Farmers Lose $15,000,000 Every Year by Selling Fertile Eggs—Rooster Is Cause.

Selling fertile eggs for market purposes during warm weather cost farmers $15,000,000 a year, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This loss is preventable. The rooster makes the egg fertile. The fertile egg makes the blood ring, which spoils the egg for food and

WORLD'S LARGEST RECORD OFFICE

Stupendous Work Carried on by Adjutant General.

HISTORY OF EVERY SOLDIER

Interesting Comparison Showing the Increased Efficiency in Handling Records Since Days of the Civil War—Keep Track of Every Activity Pertaining to Officers and Enlisted Men in the United States Military Forces.

Major Gen. Peter C. Harris, the adjutant general of the army, presides over the largest single record office in the world at Washington, D. C. There, under his direction, an army of 2,400 clerks, most of them young women, work day after day at their endless task of keeping track of every activity that pertains to officers and enlisted men in the United States military forces, keeping up a complete record of each and standing ready to supply information in reply to inquiries.

Filed away in the huge temporary buildings, which were constructed at the time of the World war, is as complete a word picture of the life of every soldier as the government could obtain. It is no exaggeration to say that the records of the World war today, thirty months after the signing of the armistice, are far more nearly complete than were those of the Civil war thirty years after its close. And it might be added that the work of the adjutant general's office at Washington is practically brought up to date, says the New York Times.

The value of this service to the many hundreds of thousands of mothers and fathers, wives, sweethearts and friends of soldiers who were or are still in the fighting forces of the nation is obvious. Information of the latest movements of every soldier is available and upon short notice information may be obtained concerning all that the War department may know, or deem it advisable to let be known, concerning every man who enlisted or was drafted for the World war.

Few of the soldiers are aware of the fact, but tucked away in one of the great buildings at Washington a young woman clerk watches day by day each happening in his life. Each of these women is the guardian of the record of 3,400 men under the present system. She carefully files away every letter or War department document that has to do with him.

With the end of the fiscal year the operations of the department are to be cut in half, as congress failed to grant an appropriation sufficient to maintain the present force.

Building Great Organization.

Perhaps the story of the assembling of this great organization is best told in General Harris's own words.

"Probably few realize," he said, "that the adjutant general's office in Washington is the largest single record office in the world.

"From the time of the War of the Revolution until 1889 the method of recording and indexing correspondence in the War office here underwent but little change. That method consisted in laboriously copying and indexing in longhand all incoming and outgoing communications. This was done in large and unwieldly volumes, known as letters received and letters sent books. There was an index to each book.

"In 1889 the record card system of recording correspondence was devised and adopted by the record and pension office, which was consolidated with the adjutant general's office in 1904. The system was a long step forward and enabled the adjutant general's office to function so expeditiously that it was not only able to handle without delay all current work, but to dispose of a large number of accumulated cases, many of which had remained in the office for over a year after their receipt. As a result of these changes the office operated satisfactorily through all the years leading up to the World war.

"But while the record card system was a vast improvement over the system that it succeeded, and provided an accurate and satisfactory method of handling a limited amount of correspondence, it was foreseen that it was not sufficiently elastic to meet the demands that would be made upon it by any great increase in the volume of correspondence such as was incident to the World war.

Grows By Strides.

"The total number of pieces of mail of all classes received in the adjutant general's office during the fiscal year 1916 was 925,080. The total number during the fiscal year 1919 was 87,616,242. For the year 1916, the daily average was 3,026 pieces and during 1919 it was 287,260 pieces. But this does not tell the whole story. From a daily average of approximately 30,000 pieces in July, 1918, the tide rapidly rose until it reached its flood with a daily average for the months in 1919 of 749,086. In other words the volume of work handled during the fiscal year 1919 was nearly ninety-five times as great as that handled during a normal year, and on several occasions during the months of May and June, 1919, the quantity of mail received in a single day approximated two-thirds of that received during the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1916.

"The ability of the office to handle such an enormous amount of work was due to the fact that it foresaw the conditions that would confront it and adopted new systems of record-making and record-keeping to meet those conditions.

"The first change made was in discarding the record card system of recording and filing correspondence and adopting the subjective decimal flat file system, which is based on the decimal system of library classification. This system met every contingency that arose during the war and there is no doubt that had this change not been made at the outbreak of the war the adjutant general's office would have failed to function.

Abolition of Muster Roll.

"This system, as modified and applied to the military records, brings together in the file the complete correspondence on any given general subject, so that on call you can readily get everything of record thereon. The personal correspondence relating to individual officers and enlisted men is filed in folders, a folder for each individual. The folders are arranged in the files alphabetically, and when you call for the folder of an individual you know you will get all personal correspondence relating to that individual. The great advantage of this system lies in the fact that no index is required in its operation.

"Prior to July 1, 1918, reports showing the duty and status of enlisted men were made to this office in the form of muster rolls, prepared bimonthly. To obtain the complete military and medical record of a man who had served on enlistment it was necessary to examine eighteen to thirty muster rolls, depending upon whether his enlistment was for three or five years, each roll containing approximately seventy names, and to examine other records in various parts of the adjutant general's office.

"The plan of preparation of such records had undergone no material alteration since the Revolutionary war, though the experience of the Civil war had demonstrated that in order to make readily accessible the records of an individual whose military and medical history was to be found on various rolls and other records it was necessary to card all of the records; that is, to copy each entry on a separate card or slip and, to assemble all those pertaining to any particular individual. The long search that was necessary proved to be time-consuming, unsatisfactory and economically impracticable.

"On July 1, 1918, the muster roll was abolished, and on that date the new method of reporting changes in the duty and station of officers and enlisted men was put into effect. These reports are made daily and are known as daily reports of changes. Upon receipt in the adjutant general's office they are filed with the other records of the men concerned, eliminating the expense incurred in carding the muster rolls and also making the most current information concerning the soldier immediately available.

"Beginning May 1, 1917, the service record also replaced what was known as the descriptive list. This record is opened for the soldier at the time of his enlistment and follows him throughout his entire service. When a soldier is discharged or otherwise separated from the service, his service record is closed and forwarded to the adjutant general of the army for file with his record as kept by the War department. While the organization record and the War department record are in many ways duplicates, each contains certain information not contained in the other."

"Tub Desk" Receptacles.

General Harris explained that the records are now kept in what are known as "tub desks." The personal, military and medical records are thus segregated and consolidated individually. Normally one clerk operates two of these so called tub desks containing the record of approximately 3,400 men.

"When a soldier is discharged, or otherwise separated from the service," continued General Harris, "we receive his service record, pay card and the report of physical examination, which, together with the other records, are placed in one container and finally removed to the file for men not in service.

"In this connection a comparison of the status of the work incident to the Civil war with that following the World war will show the great practical advantage of the present system over that which it superceded.

"On June 30, 1920, less than twenty months after the signing of the armistice, there were only 14,000 unanswered communications of all kinds in the entire adjutant general's office while the number of unanswered calls in one branch of the surgeon general's office in July, 1889, more than twenty-four years after the close of the Civil War, exceeded 40,000. The branch referred to afterward became the record and pension office, which was later consolidated with the adjutant general's office. In the division of this office, comparable with the branch of the surgeon's office referred to, there were but 9,500 calls for information unanswered on June 30, 1920, and, inasmuch as the daily receipts in that division averaged 6,000 and the daily output a little more than the receipts, it is evident that the work was practically current, and it is current today."

Protecting National Forests.

Lightning often strikes more than once—even frequently—in the same place or vicinity and experts of the United States Agricultural department are considering the possibility of mapping the lightning zones in the national forests, and for such zones providing fire lines, regulating grazing, and cleaning out of dead trees with fire-protective measures. It is believed that the mapping would show these zones closely related to certain types of topography and more or less localized sections of many forests. The importance of the matter is shown by the fact that lightning causes 30 per cent of the national forest fires, and in the very unusual season of 1920 set over half of the 5,078 fires.

She Didn't Forget.

A few years ago a Hoosier newspaper man added to the staff of his paper a young woman who seemed to have great promise in feature work. He wrote a little skit about her which read: "Every one who reads her work will feel sure that she has started on a successful career as an author." But someone in the composing room made it "amateur" instead of author.

Of course, he was profuse in his apologies, and the girl seemed to be pacified. But he knows now she didn't forget, for the other day he received her wedding announcement, and in it was a note reading: "Again I have started on an amateurish career."

CHICAGOANS TO CIRCLE WORLD IN MOTOR BOAT

A. Y. Dowen and Party on Wonderful Trip in the Ocean-Going Cruiser Speejacks.

Moored at the Chicago Yacht club basin has been lying the smallest and most compact of ocean-going cruisers. Speejacks is a 68-foot motor boat built for A. Y. Dowen, Chicago yachtsman, for a trip around the world. Recently she started up the lakes for a trip to New York by way of the Erie canal and the Hudson river and then she will slip out of New York harbor, adventure-bound for the Canal zone and the Marquesas islands.

The trip is, perhaps, the most daring ever attempted by amateurs. The itinerary contemplates a voyage of 47,000 miles and includes many remote places explorers have never visited before. More than a year will elapse before Speejacks is seen again on Lake Michigan. With Mr. Gowen will be his wife, another Chicagoan and his wife, an author, moving picture representatives and a crew of six.

Mr. Gowen's expedition is primarily for research purposes. He will carry credentials from numerous American institutes which will profit by the party's explorations. Each member of the party will play a definite part and accept the risks as well as the pleasures of the trip.

From the south seas the course will be to Australia and north through the Philippines to Japan, populated centers to be given a wide berth. Out through the Straits of Formosa to the Chinese coast Speejacks will make a run up the Yangtzekiang almost to its source. Then back out again to Borneo, to Sumatra and Java, around the foot of India, the coasts of Persia and Arabia, south along the African coast to Zanzibar and Mozambique and north to a rendezvous in the Mediterranean.

A trip to set an adventure's pulses humming, a trip to make the seasoned traveler of rough trails hot with the envy that only those can know whose hearts leap to the call of the remote!

Speejacks has been built to embody every feature thought necessary for a long and hazardous voyage. She rides easily and gracefully under the power of two 250-horsepower Winton engines, which can be operated either with gasoline or kerosene, and will develop a speed of 13 knots, with a cruising radius 3,000 miles. A beam of 17 feet and a draft of six gives an idea of her vent in the water. Aside from motive power all equipment is operated by electricity, this making it possible to navigate with a crew of only six persons.

Climate has no terrors for Speejacks. She carries a hot-water furnace for cold weather and in the tropics the air below decks will be automatically changed every six minutes by a system of forced ventilation.

Elemental Requirements.

"The ouija board," replied Senator Sorghum, "has an advantage that few orators enjoy. It invariably has the sympathy of its audience and speaks slowly and distinctly."

CHICAGO POLICE DISCARD RIOT RIFLE FOR SHOTGUN

Find New Weapon More Effective in Operation Against Thugs.

Substitution of the shotgun for the rifle in the latest development in manhunting by the Chicago police. The time honored rifle-squad has given way to the pump gun squad.

The reason for the change was thus outlined by Michael Hughes, chief of detectives:

"In close-range fighting the pump-gun is much the more efficient weapon, for within 90 feet of the objective it has a spread of four feet. Each shot carries nine rounds of lead, corresponding in size to that in a .38 revolver bullet.

"In street fighting, also, the chances of hitting the innocent bystander are greatly minimized by the use of the shotgun, because the effective range is so short.

"The other day we discovered a new use for the shotgun. During a race after bandits in an automobile, one of our men emptied his gun through the rear curtain of the speeding machine ahead. The hail of bullets stopped that car as no rifle shot would ever have done.

"The gun we use has the shortest stock. Every one of the detective cars carries these guns as regular equipment."

Another innovation in the detective bureau's equipment is a steel shield, as high as a man's head, from behind which the operatives can direct, in comparative safety, their fire at bandits barricaded in a building. This portable armor is mounted on rollers, and is light enough, so that one man can operate it. Portholes, through which to fire, and a heavy glass peep hole are appurtenances.

Bombing, which is now a recognized part of police tactics in Chicago, can be carried on with great impunity from the shelter of this shield, said Chief Hughes.

The Finishing Touch.

Jean, colored cook at a certain country club, makes hash that has no equal. The fame of the dish is great, but the secret of its excellence eluded everyone until one day a member of the club complimented Jean on her skill.

"How do you do it?" he asked. "I never get hash like yours anywhere else."

Jean's black face glowed with pleasure at the compliment. "Beef is nothin'," she replied, "Potatoes is nothin', peppah's nothin', onions is nothin'; but when ah throws myself into de hash—dat's what makes it what it is!"—Youth's Companion.

His Little Joke.

"Why these razors in a display of baby goods?"

"They're for shavers aren't they?" responded the drug clerk. "Haw, haw!"

Reassuring.

"Well, my boy, any college debts?"

"Nothing, sir, but what with diligence, economy, and stern self-denial you will be able to pay."—Jester.

The Young Man in the Little Red Room

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Molly Blair came home from the office one night and found her aunt lying on the couch in the basement dining room groaning with rheumatism.

"I'm sorry, dear," said Mrs. Hayes, feebly, "but you will have to get supper tonight—and there's the poor little boy up in the little red room—I don't believe he's had a bit to eat today!"

"Oh, dear," sighed Molly; "I'm so sorry, auntie—there, you must not worry a bit now. Close your eyes and take forty winks—then you shall have broth, and bread, too and a cup of my own tea." The girl put away her outdoor garments and hid her pretty dress under a great apron that was vastly becoming. She went into the kitchen, raked the fire, put the kettle on to boil and pushed the pot of soup over the coals. Then she skimmed over the stairs of the gloomy old house like a swallow, lighting the gas in bathrooms, halls and landings so that the roomers might find their way in. Most of the roomers took their meals at the boarding house next door, but since young Harvey had come home one night half blinded by a chemical experiment in the factory where he was employed Mrs. Hayes had served his meals to him in his darkened room and she never breathed to a soul that the young fellow was in arrears for room and food. There was something mysterious about Ronald Harvey and the good woman held her counsel and gave him motherly care until this day when stricken by her old enemy, rheumatism.

When Molly had taken a bowl of steaming soup and tea and toast up to the darken d red room on the third floor and had placed the tray on the table near the door and backed silently out, she brought her own supper tray to her aunt's couch and they ate supper together.

"The doctor says—" hesitated Mrs. Hayes between sips of tea, "that I'll have to remain here on this couch in this room for several weeks—my old heart bothers me a bit, too."

"Auntie!" cried the girl remorsefully: "I ought never to have gone into the office—you needed me here, and yet"—youth's yearning for freedom and the companionship of other young things clouded her eyes.

"I know, dearie, I know—" sighed Mrs. Hayes, "but I'm afraid you'll have to stay home with me this winter."

Molly choked down the rest of her tea and cleared the supper away. At last she came back, looking very pale and wistful, but smiling. "I'll telephone to the office in the morning," she said cheerfully, "and if they can't spare me, why, they will have to, auntie. I cannot have you making yourself sick with overwork and having horrid old rheumatism, 'n everythin'!"

"My Molliegirl—I knew you would do it cheerfully," sighed Mrs. Hayes. "Of course it's horribly dull here for a young thing like you, making up beds and sweeping and looking after things, but romance isn't always riding down the street on a white horse, and who knows—," she smiled drowsily and slept, while Molly crept away to the kitchen to pick up the neglected work. Perhaps a few tears dropped into the dish water, perhaps there was a sleepless night for the girl who had just found joy in the daily companionship of her young fellow-workers, but Mrs. Hayes had always been like a mother to little orphanned Molly, and so the girl presented a cheerful face the next morning when she began the old dull routine.

"I wouldn't mind so much if it was a pretty, new house with lovely things—no, even plain things—and there—," she always blushed when she peopled her dreams with the visionary lover and husband. So Molly became a busy dreamer once more.

Her brief office experience had taught her the value of method and she applied this knowledge to her work in the house and never had the rooms been so well cared for. Three times a day she carried meals up to the young man in the red room, until he asked if he might not be piloted down to the lower floor.

"I want to eat with real folks once more," he said in his pleasant whimsical way.

"You will save me miles of running up and down," laughed Molly, who wished he would remove his bandage so that she could see if his eyes were as good as his firm mouth and chin. She liked his voice and his smile even dimly in the darkened room, and when he came into the upper hall and she saw the brown of his skin and the muscular frame she felt a queer little thrill. He rested a hand on her shoulder and she thrilled once more. He towered above her now, for she was tiny, and he laughed teasingly at her fright when he stumbled.

Sometimes Molly read to him from dry chemical books, or articles in some scientific magazine, and once when she fell asleep over a lengthy description of a new process he leaned over and groped for her hand, but his fingers only touched her soft brown hair.

"Describe her, Mrs. Hayes," he whispered to the other invalid, who could now sit in a chair and knit.

Mrs. Hayes responded with twinkling eyes. "She's little, like a kitten, her hair is soft and brown and her eyes are blue and she has a real pink and white skin, and—"

Molly's perfect lips quivered and then little crinkles came about her eyes.

"And she smiles in her sleep when people talk about her!" she interrupted wickedly.

"Oh Molly!" chided her aunt.

"Ah, Molly Hayes!" muttered Ronald Harvey, turning quite white.

Mrs. Hayes hobbled away, for the atmosphere was highly charged with unsaid things. Her swift backward glance was a "Bless-you-my-child."

"What is the matter?" asked Molly bravely.

Ronald smiled. "Love," he said tersely.

"Oh!" Molly shivered, and it was a pity he could not see her face.

"I am in love—with—you—and some day—I'm going to marry you, if you—don't mind. I'll be all right in another week, and there'll be plenty of money when I get back to the works again. You don't say a word, Molly, is there anybody else?"

"No—no," she said softly.

He was holding her hands tightly. "We'll have a little home somewhere. Auntie and you and I—you won't mind?"

Molly's head drooped toward his. "I don't mind," she breathed gently.

Mrs. Hayes peered in at them. "Romance begins at home," she nodded approvingly as she tiptoed away.

AGE OF MAMMALS IS ENDING

Destruction Has Progressed Rapidly Since Introduction of Guns and Steel Traps.

The beginning of the age of man, some half-million years ago roughly estimated as the close of the age of mammals, marks in reality but the beginning of the close of the age of mammals. The extinction of the most superb mammals that the earth has ever produced, during the early stages of human evolution, progressed from natural causes due directly or indirectly to the Glacial epoch. With the introduction of firearms the destruction has proceeded, with increasing rapidity, and today it is going on by the use of guns and steel traps, at a more rapid rate than ever.

By the middle of this century man will be alone amid the ruins of the mammalian world he has destroyed, the period of the age of mammals will have entirely closed, and the age of man will have reached a numerical climax, from which some statisticians believe it will probably recede, because we are approaching the point of the overpopulation of the earth in three of the five great continents.—Henry Fairfield Osborn in Natural History (Journal of the American Museum of N. AS MISS ALICE EXPLAINED IT

Oklahoma Congresswoman Cited Indian Custom Concerning Proper Order of Precedence.

Not long ago the congressional delegation from Oklahoma went to pay its respects to President Harding, the Philadelphia Ledger states.

When it entered the chief executive's office the men came first and Miss Alice Robertson, the congresswoman, brought up the rear.

"This is a fine how-do-you-do," said Mr. Harding. "What's the idea of all you men preceding your distinguished woman associate?"

But Miss Robertson came to the rescue with her explanation. The men went first in submission to her will, she said. It was a custom peculiar to Oklahoma, a holdover from the old Indian days. When Indian men and women entered any building the men went first and the women followed. It was not that the men were given precedence. Quite the contrary. The Indian woman furnished the will that guided the movements of such parties. When cattle are driven down the road by cowboys, they go first, not as a matter of precedence, but because of a stronger will behind which impels them.

MAKE FOWLS WORK FOR FOOD

Grains Scattered in Litter Compel Hens to Exercise—Green Feed Aids Digestion.

All scratch feed or whole grain should be scattered in the litter, says specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Hens like to work for their living. Troughs or hoppers should be used for dry mash. They keep this feed always accessible. Noon is the time to provide fresh green food. It aids digestion.

Colonel George Harvey said at a dinner in New York, apropos of high retail prices:

"A guest in a Florida hotel complained to the manager:

"'Your restaurant is conducted in a very rotten way. At lunch today I found a hair in the ice cream, a hair in the honey, and a hair in the apple sauce.'

"'Well, you see,' the manager explained, 'the hair in the ice cream came from the shaving of the ice. The hair in the honey came from the comb. But I can't for the life of me understand about the hair in the apple sauce, for I bought those apples myself, and they were all Baldwins.'"

"GRASS GETTING VERY LONG ON OVENS," SAYS OPERATOR

A Description Which Accurately Fits a Large Part of the Region.

TONNAGE FALLS SHORT

Of Pre-Fourth Week, Although Gains 3,000 Tons and 117 Ovens Are Added to the Active List; Likely to Be Larger This and the Ensuing Week.

From The Weekly Courier

"Grass getting very long on ovens," is the expressive way in which a merchant coke producer describes conditions with respect to his particular operation In some respects this description will apply to a very large part of the region particularly as concerns the prospect of an early material improvement in the situation

Although the output of last week developed a gain of 3 000 tons to a total of 21 480 tons, it fell short by 2,000 tons in regaining the tonnage lost by the observance of Independence Day The increase is therefore only a partial recovery—not a measure of improvement in demand for coke True in previous years the return to normal in operation following a holiday celebration has not all been accomplished in a single week It may require quite as long now notwithstanding the rate of production is but a small percentage of what it has been in earlier years Perhaps the better explanation is found in the fact that production is represented by comparatively small figures simply because it is limited to the demand which is expressed in precisely the same way

Even if the tonnage output failed to equal that of the week preceding the Fourth of July because it was kept within the limits of demand there are some more or less dependable indications that it will take on slightly enlarged proportions this and the ensuing week The addition of 117 ovens to the producing list of merchant operations including the partial firing up of one plant long out of commission and the resumption of another out for several weeks means that opportunity for shipping a larger tonnage is opening up otherwise the risk would not be taken of making coke and loading it in cars without destinations or piling it on the yards awaiting purchaser The increase in production will be slight however and cannot be regarded as reflecting any material change in the situation Some of the ovens in operation are being run merely to provide waste heat for boilers or to keep the plant machinery in shape for resumption when the time becomes propitious Such a time has not arrived and is not expected without more authentic advance notices of its coming than have thus far been given The fact that the mid-summer dullness in iron and steel began about a month in advance of the usual time leads some observers to predict that it will end a month sooner and that the ending will be coincident with renewed activity in coke demand But the doubters place little faith in the prediction that September 1 will witness a change siding as heir authority to time-honored adage about all signs failing in dry weather But an equal number hold that even this sign often fails to hold good

A more or less persistent rumor is in circulation in the region that the H C Frick Coke company contemplates another revision downward in the scale of wages paid at its operations, but the rumor is without confirmation or even intimation as to what policy is to be pursued

The recent reductions made effective by W Rainey Inc and the Washington Coal & Coke company have been applied by other independent producers at whose plants there is any degree of activity either in coke production or raw coal shipment It is believed to be a foregone conclusion that a reduction in the Frick scale will be made sooner or later In any event it is a fact of the situation, which merchants are taking into account, that very considerably less money will be available for expenditure by the coke and mine workers during the approaching months than last year and also less than was available earlier in the present season.

The estimated production of coke during the week ending Saturday July 6 was 21 480 tons credited to the two districts as follows Connellsville 10 360 a gain of 1,460 tons, Lower Connellsville 11 120 a gain of 1,620 ons as compared with a loss of 5 240 tons during the preceding week

By interests the production was Furnace 7 900 a gain of 1 700 tons merchant 13 580 a gain of 1 380 tons as compared with losses of 1 230 and 1,010 tons respectively during the week ended July 9

There was a net gain of 117 ovens all at merchant plants Oliver No 3 was restored to the active list with 50 in blast Herbert added 37 to the 100 previously in running and Sterling increased its complement by 30 to a total of 160 Lincoln at which no coking operations have taken place for weeks reported firing up 40 ovens Forty ovens were blown out at Crystal

I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne Ind.—Advertisement.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

Although coke output increased by 3 000 tons to a total of 21 480 tons last week the gain did not reflect the region's response to an increase in demand It merely represented a partial return to what was the weekly average prevailing prior to the week of Independence Day That it failed by 3 000 tons to regain the loss of the holiday week indicates that even in this year when operation is but a fractional part of what it was in earlier years it requires about a long to regain normal after a celebration

But notwithstanding those facts there were evidences offered that during this and the ensuing week production will grow larger Not to any considerable extent however even though there were 117 ovens added to the active list including in it long idle plant and one resumed after being out for several weeks past Predictions continue to be made that September 1 will mark a material change possibly before but doubters exist as to fulfillment

The market is quoted for spot furnace coke and few transactions are recorded Spot standard grades for miscellaneous purposes are being sold under $3 00 but the good grades for furnace use find buyers up to $3 25 net Foundry demand has improved slightly with a stiffening but no change in price for spot which is quoted at $4 00@ $4 50

SLIGHT CHANGE HAS COME IN DEMAND FOR STEEL SHEETS, BARS

Larger Volume of Inquiry for Products as a Whole. Buyers Not Satisfied With Prices.

Special to The Weekly Courier

NEW YORK July 20 "The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows

The turn in the volume of steel demand seems to have come at last although the change is so slight as to be only barely perceptible It is clear that there has been no further decrease in the demand upon the mills in the past two or three weeks In the case of sheets and merchant steel bars there is a distinct increase in orders and specifications not large in point of tonnage but marked by a much wider distribution both geographically and by classes of consumers In steel products as a whole there is a larger volume of inquiry The turn may be set a little later occurred approximately at the middle of July The precedent of July and August being comparatively dull month in the steel industry seems to be broken but from another viewpoint it could be said that the midsummer dullness came a month ahead of time being marked at the beginning of June and has thus spent its force

Buyers of steel are not particularly well satisfied with prices Market commentators had gotten into the habit of remarking as to each decline in prices that the decline was not the final decline and go with each decline buyers have been disposed to look for 'the next decline' The probability is that commodity prices in general will trend downwards for 10 or 20 years or longer while furthermore there can be no clear cut decline from present prices since in most commodities the market is rather wide open on an inquiry of importance drawing a quotation in relation to the desirability of the order Those who buy now buy because they cannot wait and in most cases are given unprecedentedly prompt shipments In crevices in mill demand at present are to be attributed chiefly to liquidation of stocks of steel and manufactured wares rather than to increase in industrial activity generally

COST OF COAL

For Railroad Use Averaged $4 18 Per Net Ton in Month of May

Reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the railroads consuming more than half of all public fuel in the United States show that the average cost of 5 876 305 net tons purchased during the month of May was $4 13, a figure materially lower than the average for the year to date

The prices paid in May range from $2 41 paid by the Pittsburg & West Virginia to $7 98 paid by the Gulf, Mobile & Northern

In the eastern list of the tonnage used and the prices paid were as follows Baltimore & Ohio 311 41 tons $3 75 Monongahela 5 081 tons $2 90 Pennsylvania System 805 477 tons $3 97 Pittsburg & Lake Erie 18 610 tons $3 32 Western Maryland 19 186 tons $3 07

PRESENT STEEL PRICES

Still Above the Average of Five and Ten-Year Periods.

The present prices of steel says the American Metal Market are 50 per cent above the ten-year average 58 per cent above the five year average and 57 per cent above the 1913 average

They are 20 per cent below the government prices during the war control period and 37 per cent under the prices in the schedule approved by Secretary Redfield's Industrial Board the prices the Steel corporation held from March 21 1919 to April 12 1921

Lowest Since April.

During the week ended July 9 the Fairmont region last week loaded 4 210 cars of coal which was 1 419 cars shy of the previous week At 245 850 tons last week the mines of Northern West Virginia produced less coal than any time since the week ending April 9.

SNAKE HUNTERS ALARM TOURISTS

Reptile Study Club Is Met In Its Spring Hunt.

CARRIES HUGE PETS ALONG

Pittsphis Sayi Bellona Obligingly Draped Himself About the Shoulders of Mrs Williams Wife of the Director for the Benefit of the Photographers—Society Is Trying to Prevent the Slaughter of Harmless and Beneficial Snakes.

"Do you see what I see?" said one chauffeur to his companion as he halted his truck at a bare ledge of rock on the Great North Montcalm road last Saturday afternoon Raymond M Pitts recently wrote in the New York Evening Post

"Great suffering Aunt Maria" said the head of a family party in a touring car as he halted too

More chauffeurs pulled up and stared goggle-eyed Two small boys carrying fishing tackle turned and their jaws dropped as they gazed

A huge snake yellow and white and orange seven feet long and three inches thick was contented in some what torpid folds about the shoulders of a young woman who was facing a battery of photographers With them were several members of what might be termed for the moment the reptile press, besides a dozen others

It was the annual spring hunt of the Reptile Study club It was a rainy day and any native Jersey snakes had sense enough to keep in their holes The only reptiles original to the locality which the members had been able to find in the wet thickets along the road were a few harmless blue and red striped salamanders dragged squirming and indignant from the shelter of rocks overturned by the searchers.

Mr Williams' Little Pets

But the director of the society Alter S Williams who has held these hunts for the past five years to bring before the public the aim of the society to protect and prevent unnecessary slaughter of harmless and beneficial snakes did not want the reporters and photographers disappointed So he brought along snugly in cotton bags and packed in a suitcase four snakes from his private stock

Two of the four were specimens such as might be found in New Jersey and might have been seen on this day but for the bad weather They were the hog-nosed snake or puff adder known in exclusive snake circles as heterodon platyrhinus and the mountain black snake otherwise coluber obsoletus They were comparatively small and to give the reporters an idea of what the reptile tribe can do when encouraged Mr Williams brought along the big fellow a bull snake from the neighborhood of Brownsville Pa which carries the formidable title of pituophis sayi bellona and the slightly smaller king snake also from the southwest which though he would no doubt be surprised to learn of it is scientifically classified as ophibolus getulus

These two were huge and imposing The reporters hardened to strange assignments gasped a little and stood at first somewhat offshore in the offing when Mr Williams took old Mr Pituophis out of his bag But after he posed about the shoulders of Mrs Williams who is a writer herself under the name of Elizabeth Remington and behaved very nicely for the photographers they consented to festoon his snakeship about their slightly shrinking forms and were snapped for the news pictures

Making Snakes More Homelike

The two boy fishermen stood on the outside of the circle of spectators during this scene What do you do when you see a snake? asked one of the members seeking to impart a lesson in kindness to such creatures

We kill em said one boy

Why?

Cause they eat the fish Oh, yes they do Why once when I was up at Bear Mountain park I saw a water adder with a catfish as long as that in his mouth"

Wouldn't you like to hold this one and see how gentle he is?" inquired Mr Williams, offering the huge bull snake

'Gosh—no!" replied the boy, as he receded in the middle distance

"That's the trouble with country people said Mr Williams; "they are closer to things than city folks and yet they don't know so much about creatures of the woods and fields sometimes as do people with advantages of learning from museums and libraries There are only two dangerous snakes left in this part of the country the rattlesnake and the copperhead and they are no longer found near the city
